BIG News!

Correction

Last week we ran a story about Big Brother Sam and Little Brother Jordan. The story incorrectly stated that Sam did not complete college. In fact, Sam began his studies at Michigan State University, and after moving back to his hometown, Pontiac, he commuted, took evening classes and completed his degree at Wayne State University. It's a great example to Jordan--and all our Littles--that Sam didn't let anything stop him from getting his degree! We apologize for our error.

New Fund Development Director

Please welcome the newest member to the Big Brothers Big Sisters Michigan Capital Region team, Jen McCollum.

Jen is a graduate of Michigan State University and is currently completing an Event Management Certificate program at George Washington University. She has employment experience with The John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington D.C., the Family Career & Community Leaders of America in Virginia and the American Cancer Society in both Michigan and Virginia.

She's also an avid volunteer and just completed her third 26.2 mile marathon this past year!

Want to say hi? Jen can be reached at jen.mccollum@bbbs.org.

Parting Big Brothers Big Sisters Staff

As we welcome Jen, please give your best wishes to Emily Clark, who will be leaving Big Brothers Big Sisters Michigan Capital Region on Friday, November 21. Emily continues her educational and professional development as she accepts a position on the West side of the state and works toward a master's degree in library and information sciences with Wayne State University. Emily managed and increased the size of our School-based programs over the past year. She will be greatly missed.

Grad Nation

America's Promise Alliance launched a new Web site, Grad Nation. The site is a guidebook in preparing young people for life after high school.

Family Volunteer Day

Saturday, November 22

Family Volunteer Day is a national day of service designed to demonstrate the power of families who choose to volunteer together to support the communities they live in. This annual opportunity is presented by HandsOn Network, Points of Light Foundation, and The Walt Disney Company.

Family volunteering encourages the members of a family to volunteer as a unit, which can help mobilize thousands of new volunteers to meet community needs and instill a lifelong commitment to service. The annual Family Volunteer Day is a hands-on way to teach children the values of kindness, compassion, tolerance, community responsibility and good citizenship.

Take time, as a family, to get involved this Saturday, November 22. To learn how to plan a service project, register your local efforts, or discover the benefits of family volunteering, click here.

Holiday Assistance

Holiday Assistance information is now available via our Web site. Parents/guardians, you should have also received a paper version in the mail.

Exceptional Teens Wanted

Do you know or are you an exceptional teen Little or Big who deserves national recognition?

MTV Casting Call for Giving Teens:

We are looking for ambitious and passionate teens that are devoting their time to involve their community in making a difference. Whether you are raising money for a charity that is important to you or holding events to make your peers aware of a special cause, we want to hear about it here at MTV. We are doing a special casting that will recognize you for the hard work and generosity you have put forth to making a difference.

To apply for this casting, please email trlcasting@mtvstaff.com with "making a difference" in the subject line. Include your name, age, phone, city, photos, and your story about making a difference! Must be between 15 and 19 years old.

Are you applying? Keep us posted - we'd love to help spread the word if you are selected.

Matches Corner

Big Sister Stephanie and Little Sister Cassie

Check out this cute match! Big Sister Stephanie and Little Sister Cassie have been paired for about a year and half. They like baking, going camping, swimming and window shopping at the mall. Stephanie even styles Cassie's hair for school pictures!

Cassie lives with her two brothers and dad, so it's no surprise that she enjoys Stephanie's female companionship. "We do girly things together and it's so much fuuuuuuuuuun!," boasts Cassie.

Cassie's father, Christopher, is pleased with the match. "Stephanie has behavioral strategies that she uses with Cassie and they work really well. Sometimes when Cassie gets upset, she'll call Stephanie and Stephanie calms her right down."

"Cassie has really come a long way," says Stephanie. "She just has wonderful manners now and everyone around her just loves her. She is doing awesome. I'm so proud of her."

Stephanie even asked Cassie to be the flower girl in her wedding. "Cassie was a huge help to me," says Stephanie. "She came to the rehearsal dinner and helped me with invitations. I think she had a really good time at the wedding - she danced for the entire reception!"

Cassie's enjoying her match so much that when Match Support Staff Cherie last talked to her, Cassie asked her if "she could keep her really great Big Sister, Stephanie, for another year"!

Bigs like Stephanie are having a definite impact on our community's children. You can help, too. Your donation can help us match the next "Stephanie" with a child who needs a role model and friend. Read more about our impact and more about giving a tax-deductible donation.

Frequently Asked Question

Holidays are a busy time... be sure to make time for your match.

The holiday season is just starting up, and we all are aware of what a busy time of year it can be. During this time it is natural to have challenges with squeezing in time for your match. Most of us have family, friends and work plans - which often include a little bit of travel and we can't forget about all of the preparations!

Think about keeping your match meeting simple. Try including your Little in some of those simple preparations and tasks to get ready for the holiday. Your Little may love to help make sure you have all the ingredients for that pumpkin pie by joining you on your busy weekend with a trip to the grocery store. S/he may also love to be with you to drop off some non-perishable food items for that Thanksgiving or Christmas food drive. Think about including your Little in that run to the post office on Saturday morning to send packages or holiday cards. Ask her/him to help out with your holiday decorating, baking cookies, or making holiday cards or gifts. Consider taking a drive through town to look at Christmas lights and just talk. Or give your Little a call to make a snowman in the yard when more snow comes our way. Think about creating a tradition/holiday memory for your match this year - maybe do something special to give back - shoveling a neighbor's sidewalk together or volunteering together at a food pantry.

Remember that your friendship and positive impact is built on doing the little things together.

While the holidays are a busy time for adults, it can be confusing to a child to have a Big lose contact if s/he is not told why. It also might take time for your Little to regain their trust in you again, or feel comfortable opening up with you if s/he hasn't heard from you in a while. If you're not able to see your Little during a given week or if you're traveling over the holidays think about calling her/him. This is what will keep the relationship growing. Staying in touch lets your Little know you value her/his friendship and spreads a 'Little' holiday cheer.

If you have a question about being a Big, chances are someone else has it too. Send it to megan.bensette@bbbs.org and look for it answered in future editions of the E-news!
